PREFACE

(The following three paragraphs are quoted from the Introduction to the first edition).

"In reviewing the history of classmates and college acquaintances, the thoughtful reader will probably meet with three kinds of surprises. He will be agreeably surprised, that some from whom he expected little, have done so much and done it so well. He will be sadly disappointed, that some who promised so much in College have accomplished so little after graduation, and some, alas! who did pretty well in College have made an utter shipwreck in the voyage of life. But most frequently of all he will be surprised to see that the great majority have been in after life so nearly and essentially what they were in College; though after all this is only the old law that the boy is father to the man, and whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.

"On the whole we shall doubtless feel that we have no occasion to be ashamed of our mother or her sons; on the contrary, the more we know of her and of them, the more we shall love and honor both. If they are her jewels, she is their pearl. The brotherhood of our College answers somewhat to the description which the Apostle Paul has given of the church in Corinth: Not many mighty, not many noble, not very many who sit in the high places of political power and preferment; but a great number of those whom God has called to run in his service, and to do the hard work that needs to be done in the church and the world. We have our leaders in every sphere of public life, of whom we are justly proud. But the rank and file of our sacramental host, the fighting and the working men who are serving their country and mankind in the toil and battle of life, in business and the professions, in the pulpit and the press, in literature and science and education and religion—these are the strength and the glory of Amherst.

"The Alumni cannot but be grateful to the authors for a book which, besides being so instructive and so convenient for reference, will serve to brighten the chain of those college friendships which are among the most sacred that bind together human hearts, and which only grow more hallowed with the flight of years. We older graduates especially must feel drawn closer to each other and our younger brothers as we read these records of the living and the dead, and we may well seize the occasion to greet Alma Mater and all her children in the words of Longfellow: Morituri Salutamur."

W. S. TYLER.

Amherst College, May 10, 1883.

* * * * *

*The Editors have honored me with the perilous privilege of adding a line to my father's introduction to the first edition of the Biographical Record prepared by Professor Montague almost fifty years ago. My father was graduated in 1830, and knew personally almost every man referred to in the Record.

I can imagine him swelling with joy and pride as he read the names of "the fighting and working men serving their country and mankind in the toil and battle of life—the strength and the glory of Amherst College." He would still be saddened by "some, alas! who did pretty well in college and made an utter shipwreck of the voyage of life." I believe he might possibly add a kindly, humorous word of tolerance of those who never studied Greek and seemed to be doing nothing in College, and have since done more than "pretty well."

He would be even more emphatic in his sympathy with the editors and their helpers who labored and sweat blood to extract information from the heedless and careless souls of young and old alumni. Were he talking to us he would doubtless quote, as he was always doing: "Be men, dear friends; keep up a stout heart and trust one another up and down your firm ranks," and would probably add: "We are here to beat the record"—"In fertile Phthia, mother of heroes."

God bless Amherst College and all her children.

Gratefully and cordially,

JOHN M. TYLER.

Amherst, May 10, 1927.

*That Professor John M. Tyler was willing to write this preface for us, following the example of his illustrious father, who wrote the introduction to the first edition in 1883, is a source of great satisfaction. The two Tylers, known affectionately to all generations of Amherst men as "Old Ty" and "Tip", had the opportunity of being personally acquainted with every student at the College during the entire first century of its existence. It is in such traditions as this that Amherst College has always been peculiarly rich.—THE EDITORS (1927).

INTRODUCTION

The first edition of the Biographical Record of Amherst College appeared in two parts; the Record of Non-Graduates from 1821 to 1871, edited by Professor W. L. Montague of the class of 1855, and printed in 1881; and the Record of Graduates for the same period, edited by Professor Montague with the assistance of Professor E. P. Crowell of the class of 1853, and Mr. W. S. Biscoe of the class of 1874, then acting as assistant librarian, which was printed in 1883. These two volumes were undertaken in connection with the celebration of the Semi-Centennial of the College in 1871, and the delay in their publication is evidence of the difficulties encountered in collecting the material, and then making it ready for the printer—as true today, of course, as it was then. In 1901, and still under the editorship of Professor Montague, came the third volume of the work, carrying the Record from 1871 to 1896. That Professor Montague should have been able, almost single-handed, to bring out these three books, is a high tribute not only to his ability and industry, but also to his affection for, and loyalty to, the College.

At the time of the Centennial in 1921 the Alumni Council decided to assume the publication of a new edition of the work. It was the Council's idea that not only should the Record be brought down to the end of 1921, but that the biographical sketches appearing in the earlier volumes should all be revised and made as complete as possible. The Council also thought it desirable that fraternity affiliations be added, and that the family history should be as full as information would permit. The task of collecting and editing the available material was given to Mr. Malcolm O. Young, then a member of the library staff. Mr. Young was a graduate of both the College and the Albany Library School, and peculiarly well fitted not only by training but by instinct for work of a bibliographical and antiquarian nature. The results of his labors speak for themselves, and whatever credit may attach to the book should be given very largely to him. The undersigned has been concerned almost entirely with the preparation of copy for the printer and the details of seeing the book through the press.

(At this point this introduction contained statistics regarding the number of graduates and non-graduates. This present volume lists 8292 graduates and 4271 non-graduates. Ed.)

The biographies have all been written on the following plan: parents, place and time of birth, fraternity, honorary degrees, preparatory record, Amherst degree if other than A. B., professional career, brief outline of military or civilian service during the Civil and World Wars, marriage, including wife's name and children, place and time of death if deceased, present address, if living¹. No mention is made of the College when the student spent four years with the class in which he graduated. For the most part students are included in their respective classes, though they may not have received their degrees until some time later. Exceptions to this have been made only on individual requests. So far as possible we have given the name of the college from which members of the Corporation, officers of administration or members of the Faculty have graduated, if other than Amherst.

The degrees given for officers, and for members of the Faculty, are those held during the particular term of service. In this connection it may be worth noting that the College has conferred 359² honorary degrees upon its own alumni, and 278³ honorary degrees upon the alumni of other institutions. A date followed by a dash and period (-.) indicates that the person is still at the same place or holds the same office; a date followed by a dash and semi-colon (-;) implies that the date at which he left that place or office is unknown. The asterisk in front of the name indicates that the person is known to be deceased. For complete details of military service during the World War the "Amherst Memorial Volume," recently published by the Alumni Council, should be consulted. The list of abbreviations is not absolutely complete, but it is thought that such as are omitted will be for the most part self-explanatory. The graduates have been numbered, but numbers have not been given to the non-graduates. Wherever graduates are named in the pages bearing Roman numerals their numbers follow in parentheses.

Every effort has been put forth to make the biographical sketches as complete as possible. The older editions of this work, the Obituary Records, the files of the Student and The Olio, the General Catalogues of the College, the class material in the Memorabilia Collection, the questionnaires sent out by the Secretary of the Alumni Council, the various volumes of the Graduates' Quarterly—every available source of information has been consulted. The obvious incompleteness of most of the sketches, for those now living, is due almost wholly to the failure of the alumni to answer the questions that have been sent to them. This side of human nature is too well known to need comment, but it does greatly limit the effectiveness of editorial endeavor. In the same way every care has been used to prevent or correct mistakes and errors, both factual and typographical, but we are well aware that many will inevitably be discovered. The Editors have no apologies to make for the book, and no illusions in regard to it. They feel very certain that it was worth doing, and can only hope that to a considerable part of the Alumni it will make its own appeal.

INTRODUCTION TO THE REVISED EDITION

Since the Class of 1921 was graduated from Amherst, more than three thousand names have been added to the roster of Amherst men. It has seemed desirable to the Corporation at this time to have the Centennial Edition of the Biographical Record made more immediately valuable by a revision of the material already collected, and the addition of information about the men who have been associated with Amherst during these later years. The plan of the former edition has been closely followed; the text has been amended and amplified where further information was available; the format has been changed to make the book more compact. Wherever intelligibility may seem to have been sacrificed to condensation, reference to the list of abbreviations given in the fore part of the book will make ambiguities clear. The index by names has been supplemented by an index of living alumni classified in terms of business or profession, and a list of those whose names are to be found in "Who's Who" is appended.

Only one who has experienced the problems of collecting such data as is here presented can fully appreciate the remarkable work of the editors of the Centennial Edition; it can not be out of place here to record this acknowledgment of their invaluable contribution. To the Amherst men still living the editor takes this opportunity to express his grateful thanks for their coöperation, which to a surprising degree was both prompt and complete. The revising and correcting of ten thousand "lives" and the preparation for the printer of three thousand new histories involve a great amount of clerical work; the services of Mrs. Richard Creek who supervised the staff and assisted in the editing deserve especial commendation.

In compiling such a book as this it is inevitable that some records will be incomplete; but no effort has been spared to get some report from every individual on the College lists. The editor has found himself forced to become more than a tyro in the field of the "Bureau of Missing Persons," for such records have not been sent to the printer until every conceivable device known to detectives in and out of fiction has been tried. But the problems and difficulties of collecting material, and the tedium of proofreading, have been more than offset by the opportunity to become acquainted in a most delightful fashion with the lives and personalities of thousands of Amherst men. It is hoped that this book may be of similar service to many of our alumni.
